ARTICLES, &c.

THE form of discipline and government of this church is to be Congregational, which we view to be agreeable to the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. These alone we believe to be of divine authority, and agreeably to these we consider the substance of the Platform agreed upon by the Assembly of Divines at CAMBRIDGE.

I.

That none shall be admitted into this church, but such as make a credible profession of cordial subjection to JESUS CHRIST, appearing in the judgment of the church to be persons of competent knowledge in things of religion, the subjects of Christian experience, and of exemplary conversation, agreeable to Hebrews, chapter iii. Platform, chapter iii. section 1.

II.

That the exercise of brotherly love be kept up in the church, by frequent conferences in private between members, as opportunity shall allow, and meetings of the church for prayer and religious conference, in which the members shall strive to promote the spiritual good of each other, by mutual instruction, exhortation, reproof, or consolation, as the case may require, agreeably to Acts ii.

III.

That, in case of offence or scandal in any member, Christian discipline shall be exercised, with all humility and meekness, agreeably to the gospel, Matthew, xviii. and elsewhere. Particularly, when any member has reason to think any other is offended with him, he shall go and labor to be reconciled to his brother, by confessing his fault, if guilty, or by convincing his brother of his innocency, agreeably to Matthew v. 23. And on the other hand, if any brother be offended with any other, he shall go and tell him his fault in a private, humble, Christian manner, agreeably to Matthew xviii. 15; and if this step be not successful, he shall take with him one or two brethren, and labor for a Christian settlement of the difficulty, previous to any public steps of discipline in the case, by the church, as there directed.

IV.

That an offending member, being found guilty by the church, and not submitting, after the first and second admonition, administered with proper humility and solemnity, and after due long suffering, shall be rejected, and cut off from the church: see Titus iii. 10; Platform, chap. xiv. 6.

VI.*

Although the power which CHRIST has left in his church is ordinarily to be exercised under the leading and moderation of the Eldership; yet this is not to be construed to preclude the church's right of acting, if necessary, when the Elders cannot be present, or when, though regularly applied to, they decline leading the church, and especially when the church have matters of complaint against the Elders, or either of them, to which they think it their duty to attend.

VII.

That this church will hold Christian communion with all the churches of CHRIST in all things in which we are mutually agreed, so far as there shall be opportunity, agreeably to chap. xv. Platform.

VIII.

That we will be ready to assist other Christian churches, with whom we are connected, by counsel, when desired; to admit their members to occasional communion in the Lord's Supper; and to receive the sacraments at the hand of their pastors, according to Platform, chap. xv.

IX.

That, in cases of difficulty, which cannot be settled satisfactorily in the church, the advice of sister churches, by their pastors and delegates, shall be requested; and when obtained, be complied with by all parties concerned, unless in their judgment they have weighty reasons to dissent; which reasons shall be offered to the council, when time and circumstances will admit of it, and, if otherwise, to the church, previous to a dissent, agreeably to Acts xv. Platform, chap. xvi. But in all cases within the contemplation of this article, a council is to be regarded as advisory only, without any paramount control over the decisions of the church.

X.

That we do not think it our duty to receive to stated communion and membership (except in cases extraordinary) any members of churches with whom we are in fellowship, without the consent and recommendation of the church from whence they come, or the recommendation of an ecclesiastical council, chosen agreeably to established usages in Congregational churches.

XI.

To prevent misunderstanding, and for the exercise of brotherly love, we think it expedient that members coming from other churches, previous to their admission, not only bring a recommendation from the church to which they belong, with consent to their joining in this; but that they be made thoroughly acquainted with the principles, order and government of this church; and whenever, in the judgment of the church, it may be deemed necessary, that they give a relation of their Christian experience, and state the reason of the hope that is in them—upon doing which, and consenting to the Articles and Covenant, they shall be received to membership, the church voting to accept them.

XII.

Inasmuch as we are often exhorted in the word of God not to be conformed to the world, we hold ourselves bound to abstain from its vain amusements, and to do what we can to persuade those under our care to abstain from them, in as far as they appear to be inconsistent with the spirit and precepts of the Gospel. Ec. xi. 9. Rom. xii. 1, 2.

XIII.

Whereas there are many things as contrary to the gospel, as darkness is to light, which professors of religion sometimes make too light of; such as foolish talking and jesting; vain disputings about words and things, which edify not, but rather gender strife; spending time idly; unnecessary conversation on the Lord's day, &c.; we think it for the glory of GOD, that we abstain from these and such like things, and will faithfully rebuke any of the members of this church, if at any time they are found in these, or in any of these sinful practices: Eph. v. 11.

XIV.

Though no human compositions are of divine authority, yet we look upon the Confession of Faith, and Shorter Catechism, agreed upon by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster, to be an excellent system of the doctrines of our holy religion.

XV.

That, in the choice of a Pastor, the church must obtain satisfaction respecting the person's qualifications for the office, agreeably to the Apostle's directions to Timothy and Titus; respecting his experimental acquaintance with Christianity, as well as competent gifts, abilities, knowledge and wisdom for the office, agreeable to chapter viii. sec. 4, of Platform.

XVI.

To prevent as much as possible any unconverted minister ever having the charge of this church, we think it necessary, that such persons as may be set over us in the Lord, should give the church a particular account of what God has done for them, by a work of grace upon their hearts, and sign the articles of the church, before ordination to the pastoral office over it.

XVII.

That we view it a principal part of ministerial work, besides preaching and praying publicly, and administering the ordinances of the Old and New Testaments, &c. to know the state of the flock, and for this end frequently to visit the poor, as well as the rich, to converse with them about the state of their souls; that he may more privately as well as publicly pull down the kingdom of Satan, and build up the kingdom of CHRIST in the hearts of his hearers.

N. B. These Articles are considered as being adopted and signed with the following

COVENANT.

WE, whose names are underwritten, apprehending ourselves called of GOD into a gospel church state, deeply sensible how unworthy we are of so high a privilege, cannot but admire that rich and free grace which triumphs over so great unworthiness. But with humble reliance on the aids of that grace, which is promised to all, who, with a true sense of their guilt and ruin, return to GOD for pardon and help, we thankfully lay hold on his covenant. Avouching, this day, the LORD JEHOVAH, FATHER, SON, and HOLY GHOST, to be our God, our Father, our Saviour, and our Leader, we humbly give up ourselves to him, and receive him as our portion forever. We give up ourselves and our all to the blessed JESUS, whom we acknowledge as ALMIGHTY GOD, and, in the covenant of grace, engage to adhere to him, as head over all things to his church and people, relying upon him as our Prophet, Priest, and King, to bring us to eternal blessedness. We acknowledge our everlasting and indispensable obligations to glorify our God, in all the duties of a holy, sober and religious life. Depending, therefore, on his powerful grace, we engage to walk together, particularly in a church state, in the faith and order of the gospel, as far as we shall have the same revealed to us by the word and Spirit of God; conscientiously attending the worship of God in all its parts, in secret, in the family, and in public, upon the sacraments of the New Testament, baptism, and the Lord's supper, upon the discipline of his kingdom, and upon all his holy institutions. Declaring our firm belief of the Christian religion, as revealed in the scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, and of such a view of it, substantially, as the Westminster Catechism exhibits, we heartily resolve to conform ourselves to it as long as we shall live in the world. Affectionately giving up ourselves to one another in the Lord, we solemnly covenant faithfully to watch over each other, to seek the promotion of each other's spiritual good, to submit ourselves to the discipline and government of CHRIST in his church, and watchfully to avoid all sinful stumbling blocks and contentions, as become a people, whom the Lord hath bound up together in the same bundle of life. At the same time, we also dedicate our offspring with us to the Lord, purposing with his help faithfully to perform our duty to them in the methods of a religious education, that the Lord may be their God.

All this we do, relying on the blood of the everlasting covenant for the pardon of our many transgressions, and praying that the glorious Lord, who is the great Shepherd, would prepare and strengthen us in every good work to do his will, working in us that which is well pleasing in his sight; to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.
